

Robert Kang

Sr. Cybersecurity and Regulatory Compliance Attorney
Southern California Edison Company

Robert Kang is a senior cybersecurity and regulatory compliance attorney at the Southern California Edison Company; the company's first. His cybersecurity practice focuses on assisting his company protect the bulk electric grid from the threat of cyber terrorist attack. He is the primary author of Edison Law Department's Cybersecurity Incident Response Guide and one of the primary architects of the company's cybersecurity compliance program.. He matriculated from the UCLA School of Law, and was ranked number 10 in his class. Prior to working at Edison, Robert was a senior litigation attorney at the law firm of Jones Day, working on regulatory and intellectual property matters.

Robert gives technology, privacy and technology-related presentations throughout the United States and Asia. He is a co-chair of the Los Angeles chapter of the International Association of Privacy Professionals. As an advisor to Loyola Law School, Los Angeles, Robert helped create the school's new cybersecurity and data privacy curriculum.